Comments: I am looking for a person who served in Kwangju, Korea in the early 70's to middle 70's. My mother's name was Kim il Soon. There was a person who took care of me and my mother. I think I was between 3 to 5 years old and could not remember his name except Pop. I knew I was not his son but he let me call him Pop. He left and we never heard from him. There were two military bases in Kwangju, army and air force, but I think he was in the air force. I remember because he took us to movies and shopping in the base. I would love to hear from him. I am an Amerasian and now living in U.S. and would love to look him up.

I was so upset by my fathers suffering in Korea and that of all veterans that served there I set up my own website at www.thekoreanwar.co.uk to try and bring stories from veterans by their own words. This woman should be a politician as she clearly has her head up her own rear end and doesn't listen to the hard facts. Shame on you. God bless all those KW veterans wherever they are and to those in all wars past and present and future.

My brother Roy Roberts was with Cpl. Moore when they went looking for something to eat. Eggs or chickens when they came to a small village and found 8 North Koreans who wanted to surrender.
They took them back to the convoy and set out after the food which they found.
The article appeared in the Stars and Stripes all Japan Edition in October 28th, 1950.
My brother is in bad health and had a stroke this past Friday.
If there is anyone who can direct me to Cpl. John W. Moore or a relative I will be forever grateful.

Comments: I am a Purple Heart Veteran!

When I was in those muddy trenches in Korea, everyday living was pretty miserable. However, seeing those brave young men coming out of the sky, diving with their F86s and Corsairs, dropping their 500 and 1000 pound bombs on the enemy was a sight to see.

I thought to myself, it takes a lot of guts for those guys to go into a steep dive to drop those bombs. I often wondered if they knew just how much the infantry down on the ground appreciated what they were doing up there.

We were able to get off our bellies and walk around like normal human beings while they kept the enemy off our backs. To this day, I am still thankful for those brave young men.

I say thank you and God bless Sen. John McCain for his years of service to this country. It is important to recognize the sacrifices he made when his plane was shot out of the sky and he spent all those years as a POW. I personally think that Wesley Clark ought to be ashamed of the comments he made about the Senator's service. It took a lot of guts for John McCain to do what he did.

He said that the ROK troops on Chaeju (Jeju) Island said they didn't need so much rice, and when he went there to investigate, was finally told they had killed 10,000 prisoners and dumped them in caves. He also used to have pictures of heads piled up on trucks, executed commies, some young girls. He said he was given some decoration by the ROK. He also said he was shot down once near a frozen lake but survived while the pilot died -- hard to believe that one. Any information?

Arriving in Korea the day the Armistice was signed. His Name is James B. Lippincott, he was nicknamed "Lippy or Chief" He was a big, tall dark haired Irish/American Indian. I have an article about him heading a mobile radio repair unit mounted on a half track. Repairing radios for the 7th division signal repair section. He is no longer with us but I would like some information about his service to share with his children and grand children.

I was with the 45th T Birds out of OK. When I got out in 1954 I asked what they would do for the frozen hands and feet, and they laughed at me and said. That is tissue damage try to prove it. I applied two times after discharge and was denied both times. Finally after 50 years of try I received 10% for each of the extremities and 10% for PTSD. I have an app in for upgrading put have not heard anything yet. The point is never give up. Good luck to all those trying.

On a thought, I did a little surfing and ended up here. My dad has published his memoirs and I have read his detailed account leading up to this tragic event. He was seriously wounded on November 2, 1950. He finally made contact and has stayed in contact with his old friends Roy Manning, Melvin Rudd and Fred Ryan until Fred's passing a few years ago. I've grown up (54 years) hearing B battery 987th Korea and C battery 37th Division WWII. The reunion dates for each unit were marked on the calendar a year in advance. Dad has always been very proud of his service in both wars and of the men he served with. He has tried to maintain contact with as many as possible. I am so very glad that this site is here and that the service of these veterans will not be forgotten. James Neely, who wrote about Bull Run, and his family were frequent visitors to our home. I took my training at Aberdeen Proving Grounds and was slated for Korea but my medical records were lost so while the rest of the training contingent shipped out to the far east I stayed behind to establish new medical records and then was shipped out to England. We landed on the 16th of June 1953, just two weeks after the new queens coronation. towns were still decorated and it was a welcome sight to this young soldier. I was sent to R.A.F. Station Chelveston and assigned to the 620th EAMC as a member of SCARWAF (Special Category Army With Air Force). I worked in the machine shop located in a "T" hanger dating back to WWII when the 305th Heavy Bomb Group was stationed at the base. I left England in September 1955 and married the young lady who had waited for me. We celebrated our fifty first anniversary in May 2007. I look back on my service days with fondness. I was very fortunate not to have gone with the rest of those I trained with to Korea, so many didn't come back. they are the heroes.

Comments: I am looking for men I served with during the Korean War.

After coming off line with the 40th Infantry Division, 224th Regiment at the very beginning of February 1953 I was reassigned as cadre to the 65th Infantry Regiment and as a sergeant I helped reform the regiment's Heavy Mortar Company. I remained with the company until August 1953. There were some of those men on the ship that brought us home.

Anyone who was there at that time or remember me please get in touch.

He told me about my brother's last day and what the guys were talking about while being held. My brother was sitting next to Fred when he died. Anyone else out there

He and his fellow seamen never received the recognition they deserved even though they gave so much. If any one reading this sailed with him at any time during his career, I would very much appreciate hearing from you.

Comments: Good Day,

First thank you so much for operating such an excellent site on the Korean War.

Your site has been helpful to me as I have begun to search for information about my two fathers (birth father and adopted father) during their tours in and over Korea in 1953.

My birth father was PFC Harry Lord Sargent, Jr. from Hampden, Maine, a BAR man in the Army, Company E, 27th IR, 25th ID. He was killed in action on May 6th, 1953 by enemy artillery fire. Official papers I have indicate he was killed near Munsan-Ni, Korea. Following my mothers death, I have just received numerous letters written by my birth father to her from the day he left for basic on Sept. 4, 1952 until the day he was killed in May of 1953. Also included in the papers was a letter from a fellow soldier in his unit to my mother. In his letter he describes a pact between my father and him to write each others family in case one or the other was hit and provide details to the respective family. In his letter from 1954 to my mother, he finally is able to "honor his promise" and in response to my mother's requests he shares the time, location and details of my fathers death. He indicates they were located on Hill 155 when around noon on May 6th, 1953 an enemy artillery barrage fell upon their positions and my father was mortally injured having been wounded beyond the abilities of the medics locally to save him.

Here is where I would appreciate your assistance. Can you tell me where Hill 155 was? Secondly, can you educate me as to how the various hills came to be known as Hill 155, or Hill 234, etc? Any assistance you can provide will be appreciated.

As I mentioned earlier I had two "fathers" serving in Korea at the same time. I was 7 months old when my birth father was killed. Some years later, my mother met and married Samual H Boone. Sam flew in B-29s over Korea with the 19th Bomb Group, 28th Bomb Squadron from January 1953 - July 1953. Sam raised me as his own and today we converse regularly via email and phone. Sam spent his Air Force career as a member of SAC, retiring as a Major in 1969 having flown in B-29, B-36, B-47 and B-52 aircraft to mention a few. I am very proud to be both these men's son.

Best Regards, John Sargent Boone

Comments: My father, Lowell F. Leibold, a Navy corpsman and 27-year-old 're-tread' from the Second World War, was a member of "Easy" Medical Company (1stMarDiv.) between 1951-52. The photos of Easy Med and the oral testimonies of Dr. Barney Dibble and Navy corpsman Tom Brown (2/5) somehow brought my dad back to life once more even if only for a few minutes. Dad passed in 1994, just missing the sweeping national revival of interest in the two wars in which he served. To survivors of George Company 3/7 and former members of Easy Med, here's a sincere and hearty thank you for your Korean service. My dad's last mortal words were spoken while he lay semi-comatose in a Branson, Missouri hospital bed, and they were reserved for you, the men with whom he had served on Okinawa (Operation "Iceberg") and in Korea.

tomorrow I am going to try and get him to tell me the name of his unit so that I can get him added to this wonderful database, and I will try and get any names of any buddies he remembers so that maybe I can bring them together thru the help of this site. Thanks so much for letting people know who call it the "Forgotten War" that it wasn't forgettable for anyone who was there. Also, I would like to say thanks so much for defending my freedoms, even before I was born. I am only 35, but I see the things which my father won't talk about in his eyes and I wonder does he think, as he reflects back on his life, did it go unnoticed. I will let him know that it did not and that this is a wonderful place. Thanks so much--

Comments: Hi Lynnita, Remember this old pain in the neck. It appears things are doing well with you. I'm still looking for the guys in Korea & have been in touch with guys who were in K Co 31st Regt. 7th Div., but none were who I was looking for. Nor could they remember any of my guys. No wonder. We weren't socializing. We were busy saving our lives when we got to the reservior. I couldn't find my guys but made a few new friends in the search, You know Don Mayville, Butch Margan, Jerry Francois, these are some of them. I even got to talk to Ed Reeves, but again, he couldn't remember any of my names. I'm going to go through these 385 pages you have now. Who knows. Might hit it lucky.
Take care, you're still the sweet lady in my mind after your ordeal with Lou Dechert, is at it again and put the Barker Boys out of business. What a jerk with a big ego. I don't know who's worse, him or John Kerry. They're both on my @#%$!-list. Take care Lady. John

Comments: Hi

I'm looking for info on a Roger Lesaine/Lessene.

He was born around 1931 in St Paul Minnesota.

He was stationed in or around London after the Korean war around 1955.

I've been told that he received the Silver Star in the Korean war.

Any info would be a great help.

Many thanks

Susan
